

RURAL ONTARIO FACTS

Languages Factsheet

HIGHLIGHTS

- Most people in rural and urban areas speak English at home.
- German is the most commonly spoken non-official language in rural areas.
- A higher proportion of people speak French in rural areas than urban areas.

Overview - What do social statistics tell us?

Census data helps us understand what languages are spoken in our communities. This factsheet presents statistics for languages that are spoken most often at home. We examine the differences across municipalities in Ontario to explore rural and urban trends. Summary statistics for census divisions and economic regions are presented in the appendices.

Official languages

Official languages are most commonly spoken at home in Ontario (Table 1). Almost all people in rural areas speak an official language at home, compared to 80% of people in urban areas. English is the most commonly spoken official language, at more than 96% in both rural and urban areas (Table 2). A higher proportion of people speak French in rural areas than urban areas.

Table 2. Number and proportion of people speaking official languages at home.

Geography	English	% English	French	% French
Rural	2,268,390	96.3%	86,370	3.7%
Urban	8,641,970	98.1%	168,465	1.9%
Ontario	10,910,360	97.7%	254,835	2.3%

Non-official languages

European languages are more common in rural areas, while Asian languages are more frequently spoken at home in urban areas (Table 4). German is the most commonly spoken non-official language in rural areas, while Mandarin is more common in urban areas. Punjabi (Panjabi) is the second most common language in urban areas and 3rd in rural areas. Spanish ranks 5th in both areas, while Portuguese ranks 8th for rural communities but 9th for urban communities.

Seven of the most commonly spoken non-official languages in rural areas do not appear in the urban top 10, including German, Pennsylvania German, Plautdietsch, Dutch, Polish, Oji-Cree, and Italian. Notably, Indigenous languages do not appear in the urban top 10, even though most Indigenous people live in urban areas. Seven languages in the urban top 10 are not commonly spoken in rural areas, including Mandarin, Yue (Cantonese), Arabic, Urdu, Tagalog (Pilipino, Filipino), Tamil, and Iranian Persian.

Table 3. Top 10 non-official languages spoken most often at home in rural and urban areas.

In rural areas, northwestern Ontario has the highest proportion of people speaking a non-official language at home. Eleven communities with a high non-official proportion are Indigenous reserves and settlements, where Indigenous languages are spoken (Table 4). More than half of the people in Poplar Hill, Wunnumin 1, and Kasabonika Lake speak an Indigenous language at home. Between 30% - 40% percent of people speak an Indigenous language at home in 5 rural communities: Webequie, Neskantaga, Kingfisher Lake 1, Fort Albany (Part) 67, Summer Beaver.

In urban areas, there is a higher proportion of people speaking a non-official language at home in southern Ontario. Greater than 40% of people in Markham and Richmond Hill speak non-official languages at home (Table 5). Brampton has the 3rd highest proportion at almost 38%. The proportion is around 30% of people in Mississauga, Vaughn, and Toronto.

Table 4. Rural municipalities where at least 20% of the population speak a non-official language at home.

Summary

Diversity is important for a community's cultural, economic, and social wellbeing. In diverse communities, it is important for people to have opportunities to maintain their culture, which includes speaking their language of choice. Most Ontarians speak an official language at home. Communities, policy makers and organizations can use the statistics presented in this factsheet to develop programs that encourage linguistic diversity.

This factsheet was prepared by Danielle Letang, Data Analyst for the Rural Ontario Institute. Questions about data sources and any comments or feedback can be directed to facts@ruralontarioinstitute.ca.

This factsheet is part of the Rural Ontario Facts series. Each factsheet provides insight and analysis of rural facts and trends featured in the dashboards.
