INTRO SHOW

RAY
Hi everybody! Welcome to Cats on Film Pod. I'm your host, Ray Ilyn, here with my co-host, Skipper.

RAY
Thanks for joining us every Tuesday as we review cats in film. There will be spoilers.

Our movie today is I, Robot, from 2004. Another in the Will Smith action sci-fi genre.

Let's recap!
A shorthair orange tabby lives in a nice big mansion with an old white man whose death is being investigated by Detective Will Smith.
The cat's hospitable, but Will tries to keep it professional. Then a giant robot destroys the mansion while trying to kill Will Smith, almost killing the cat as well. They have to book it out of the house as it's demolished all around them. Will kindly picks up the cat on his way out the front door. He does care.

The last we see of the cat, Will is leaving 'em with his granny Gigi, who cages birds.

RAY
It is nice to see a person speaking with a cat as an equal.

RAY
I dunno. I wasn't able to read the name on the collar . . .

RAY
The kitty's totally welcoming! And then –

Look, I understand you've experienced a loss, but this relationship just can't work.

I mean, you're a cat; I'm black. And I'm not gonna be hurt again.

SKIPPER

RAY
Exactly. And now the nice mansion is gone and they've gotta live with some bird lady.

RAY
But the cat's not fully CGI. A live cat was definitely in the water with him after escaping the demolition, poor kitty!

meows

RAY
Yeah, as though you can make up for holding a cat in a chilly swimming pool by pattin' 'em on the back!

RAY
A real troublemaker!
Alright—what's your review of I, Robot, Skipper?

SKIPPER
Meows

RAY
Totally. Only one paw out of four for all the violence this friendly tabby was put through.
