Dog Training

There are many different ways to train your dog. Some people use treats, some use clickers, and some use a combination of all three. The most important thing is to be consistent and patient. Your dog will learn if you keep at it.

Struggling with Dry Paws

Many dogs suffer from dry paws, which can be caused by a variety of factors. It could be due to the weather, the type of ground they are walking on, or even their diet. There are several ways to help your dog's paws, including using paw balms and keeping them hydrated.

Facts about general timelines

- Seven to Ten Years Old: Most veterinarians and experts consider this the age when a cat enters its "senior" or "mature" stage.
- Eleven Years and Up: A cat is typically classified as senior from 11 years of age.
- Fifteen Years and Up: From 15 years onwards, a cat is often considered geriatric.

What to do to influence a Cat's Aging Process

- Regular Veterinary Check-ups: Essential for early detection of age-related diseases.
- Monitor Behavior: Watch for any changes in your cat's habits, as these can signal underlying health issues.
- Proper Nutrition: Maintain or improve the health of body systems by adjusting their diet.

Instead of breed-specific ages, focus on these changes:

- Slowing Down: Reduced activity levels, sleeping more, and less ability to jump.
- Changes in Appearance: Less meticulous grooming, which can affect overall appearance.
- Physical Clues: Cloudiness in the eyes, or eyes that appear a bit "cracked".
- Dental Issues: Teeth showing wear, gum disease, or tooth loss can impact appetite and weight.
